

Jude Douglass - Health and Medical Communications

Jude Douglass is a consultant with over 20 years' experience in global and domestic healthcare markets. She has had direct experience of all the major elements of the communications mix in a career encompassing training, medical publishing, medical education, professional relations and media relations.

After gaining a degree in chemistry at Manchester and a period of research at Cambridge University, Jude worked with PA Management Consultants in their technical consultancy division. After a spell in Haymarket Medical Publications where she designed and implemented educational programmes she joined the Hill and Knowlton Eurosciences group to work on global pre-marketing programmes.

Jude became Director of Publishing at Excerpta Medica, Oxford, overseeing medical education programmes and developing strategic publication plans. She continued her work on global pre-marketing programmes at Gibbs Associates where she also supervised the transition of the company following its acquisition by BSMG.

Since 2000, Jude has pursued a freelance career working directly for biotech and device companies or on contract with some of the UK's most respected agencies.

Please use the contact form on the website if you require further details: www.healthcomparters.co.uk